

In this work, the authors evaluated ice microphysics in CAM5 using aircraft observations. Several parameters about ice size distribution were compared with two different field campaigns. The sensitivity of the ice-snow autoconversion was also evaluated. These detail evaluations are very useful for improving cloud microphysics scheme in CAM5. Therefore, I would like to recommend publication of the paper.