

Interactive comment on “Non-agricultural ammonia emissions in urban China” by Y. H. Chang

J. Worden

john.worden@jpl.nasa.gov

Received and published: 31 March 2014

You might consider looking at satellite measurements of Ammonia. The Aura TES instrument measures about 4-5 ppb of ammonia in the boundary layer for the region around the Beijing area (TES takes targeted observations over Beijing quite frequently).

These values are consistent with those measured near livestock facilities in the USA by TES (Pinder et al., GRL 2011)

Interactive comment on Atmos. Chem. Phys. Discuss., 14, 8495, 2014.