

Interactive comment on “Five-year flask measurements of long-lived trace gases in India”
by X. Lin et al.

Y. Tiwari

yktiwari@tropmet.res.in

Received and published: 1 April 2015

The similar efforts of monitoring CO₂ and CH₄ from a nearby station in India Sinhagad (SNG) is in operation since 2009 (Tiwari et al., 2014). The trajectory analysis from SNG shows that the station is capturing central Indian signals during winter monsoon, whereas oceanic signal during summer monsoon.

I would suggest authors to add above comments in the manuscript.

Interactive comment on Atmos. Chem. Phys. Discuss., 15, 7171, 2015.

C1254