

Interactive comment on “Ice melt, sea level rise and superstorms: evidence from paleoclimate data, climate modeling, and modern observations that 2 °C global warming is highly dangerous” by J. Hansen et al.

E. Stabenau

Erik_Stabenau@nps.gov

Received and published: 26 July 2015

I found this a very interesting read, in particular considering that these projections are within time frames that are relevant for land management and urban development. I'd be interested to see a few comments, here or in the final draft, as to what observations, present or in the next decade or so, would verify some of the assumptions in the model.

Interactive comment on Atmos. Chem. Phys. Discuss., 15, 20059, 2015.

C5208