

The authors have addressed my significant concerns with this manuscript. In particular, it has been streamlined, sections reorganized, new spatial context added, and key points are now sufficiently highlighted. While other reviewers have substantial concerns regarding interpretation, properly addressing those concerns is part of the conversation in the larger, scientific literature. This paper will help propel that conversation forward.