

North Atlantic Oscillation response in GeoMIP experiments G6solar and G6sulfur: why detailed modelling is needed for understanding regional implications of solar radiation management

Authors have made the text much cleaner. Authors have responded clearly to all review comments. I will recommend to accept this version of the paper. The paper broadens our understanding of geoengineering